

January Clinic Updates

We hope that you all had a wonderful holiday season and had the opportunity to celebrate with family and friends. As we all get back to our regular schedule we want to wish all of our producers that are going to start calving and lambing good luck. Hope you stay warm out there!

Continuing Education

At COVS we feel that it is very important that our veterinarians and technicians continue to learn throughout their careers. This allows us to keep up to date on the latest developments in veterinary medicine. As such our staff attends conferences on a regular basis. Dr. Stoddart recently attended the American Association of Equine Practitioners Annual Conference at the beginning of December where she attended talks on dentistry, metabolic disease and hoof health. In February Dr. Ryan is attending the American Association of Bovine Practitioners Recent Grad Conference where she will learn about calf housing, pain management and parasite control. We look forward to sharing what we have learned with our clients.

Bull Breeding Soundness Exams

Starting this month we are having a promotion on Bull Breeding Soundness exams. This way you can ensure that your bull is in good working order prior to turning him out with the cows. Every year we have a couple of producers who find out at fall preg checks that something was amiss. This is a costly mistake that can easily be prevented by examining the bull prior to turn out. At COVS we believe strongly in preventive medicine and as such are offering you 15% off a Breeding Soundness Exam this winter.
